

Alexander-Graham Bell

Alexander Graham Bell was born on the March the 3rd 1847 and he died on the 2nd of August 1922 at the age of 75, he died from diabetes complications.

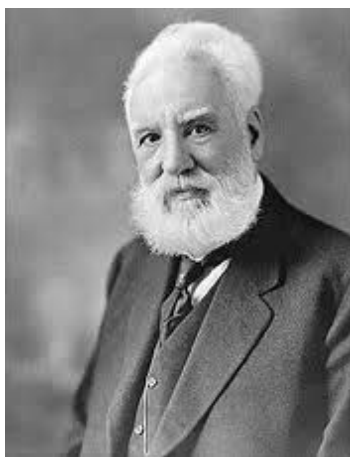

He was well known for inventing the telephone, The first words ever spoken on the telephone were "Mr Watson come here".

He had many other occupations he was an inventor, a scientist, engineer, and a teacher of the deaf.

A very important achievement he earned was the French Volta Prize he earned it in 1880.

Alexander Graham Bell worked in Elgin Academy Moray.

Alexander Graham Bell invented the telephone in the year of 1871. The telephone is still used today.

Written by Fiona Sheach and Scott Davies, s1, Lossiemouth high school, 29/09/11